Myth busters...

Myth 1:

I will be able to survive on state benefits for a while...

- Statutory Sick Pay only amounts to £95.85 a week for up to 28 weeks and is not available to self-employed people¹
- Employment Support Allowance is £73.10 a week²
- An average household in the UK spends £588 per week³

So would you be able to survive on £96.35 or £73.10 a week?

Myth 2:

I am self-employed you won't cover me

- We specialise in providing Income Protection for the self-employed. We provide own occupation policies which means you're covered for the job you do.
- We price all our occupations the same so we won't charge you more than someone who is employed.
